CHA Board Advances Three Major New Housing Developments on the West, North and Southwest Sides, Including the First Phase of Leclaire

Published on July 18, 2023

The Chicago Housing Authority (CHA) Board of Commissioners Tuesday advanced three major new housing developments on the West, North and Southwest Sides, including the first phase of the long-awaited LeClaire redevelopment effort. The other projects are Parkside Phase 5 in the former Cabrini Green area and Ogden Commons Phase A2 in the Lawndale neighborhood.

Together, these projects will add 357 new rental apartments around the city, including 153 apartments for families from CHA's waitlists, 134 affordable apartments and 70 market-rate apartments.

"Creating new affordable housing in Chicago is a cornerstone of my administration and I am pleased that these three key projects are moving forward. A better, stronger, safer Chicago can only be realized when residents in every single Chicago neighborhood have access to affordable housing. I am particularly grateful to Congressman Garcia for his support of the LeClaire redevelopment, which will add 650 new homes for families on the Southwest Side," said Chicago Mayor Brandon Johnson.

"CHA is increasing affordable housing opportunities throughout Chicago and ensuring that these investments lead to strong communities where families who need housing assistance can achieve economic power," CHA CEO Tracey Scott said.

Scott added: "The housing developments approved today come in addition to 1,800 total mixed-income units under construction now, and an additional 500 units that are scheduled to be under construction later this year. With our public and private sector partners, CHA continues to identify new opportunities to preserve and create affordable housing for low-income families in diverse communities across Chicago.

"The LeClaire project has been a long time coming and has included many local and federal stakeholders along the way. The new LeClaire development will return much-needed affordable housing to the CHA site and create a community where residents will have easy walking distance to groceries, child care, and healthcare services," said Congressman Jesús "Chuy" Garcia. "Today's CHA Board approval starts the project's initial phases and will positively impact underserved communities on Chicago's Southwest Side."

"The LeClaire development is fulfilling a long-held commitment to return affordable housing to this CHA site with vital community services," said 22nd Ward Alderman Mike Rodriguez. "This long-vacant land along a key corridor will become a thriving neighborhood and provide high-quality homes to families, including those that need rental subsidies. Neighbors in the community have pushed for services like a grocery store and other basic resources to complement the housing. This development represents years of stakeholder engagement, including from public housing residents, who have advocated for the project."

LeClaire

The LeClaire redevelopment is a 36-acre multiphase, mixed-use, mixed-income community development project located on the site of the former LeClaire Courts. It is located along Cicero Avenue in the Garfield Ridge neighborhood near Midway Airport. LeClaire is the last CHA legacy housing site to begin residential construction.

The new housing development planned for LeClaire will offer approximately 650 mixed-income residential units, as well as a grocery store, federally qualified medical center and daycare to serve the community.

The CHA Board approved a number of actions advancing the initial phases of the project, including entering into a ground lease for the first residential phases of the project, which will consist of two six-story buildings containing 183 mixed-income apartments (86 CHA, 79 affordable, and 18 market-rate.)

The Board also approved entering into an infrastructure agreement with the City of Chicago, which will provide approximately $27 million to support the infrastructure work needed for the site, including water mains and streets.

The developer on the project is LeClaire LLC, a venture between Cabrera Capital and The Habitat Company LLC.

Parkside Phase 5

The CHA Board of Commissioners also approved the new Parkside Phase 5 housing development, which includes 99 apartments in four buildings (an eight-story midrise building and three, three-story walk-up buildings.) The development will provide on-site social services to residents as well as community space, a fitness center and playground. The project includes 30 CHA, 28 affordable, and 34 market rate apartments. Notably, 35 of the apartments are either three or four bedrooms.

CHA will provide an $11.5 million construction loan for the project as well as an estimated $13.5 million in rental assistance over 20 years.

Parkside 5 is located on the site of the former Cabrini Green development and is the final phase of the Parkside of Old Town mixed-income community, which began in 2005. To date, in the Cabrini area, CHA and its partners have created over 3,500 rental and for-sale housing units (including 1,226 CHA and 867 affordable) on twenty-five mixed-income sites

Holsten Real Estate Development Corporation and the Cabrini Green Local Advisory Council Development Corporation are the developer for this project.

Ogden Commons (Phase A2)

Finally, CHA's Board approved funding for the Ogden Commons Phase A2 housing development in the Lawndale neighborhood, which will add an additional 75 apartments, including 30 CHA, 27 affordable and 18 market-rate.

CHA will provide a $9.95 million construction loan for the project as well as an estimated $10.8 million in rental assistance over 20 years.

Ogden Commons A2 is located on the site of the former Lawndale Courts housing complex, near Douglass Park. Ogden Commons JV LLC, which consists of affiliates from the Habitat Company LLC, Mount Sinai Hospital Medical Center of Chicago, and Lawndale Real Estate LLC, is the developer for the project.

Phase A1 of Ogden Commons is already under construction and includes 92 apartments with 37 CHA, 46 affordable and nine market-rate.
